

Junior IT Business analyst

Exellys is specialized in integrating strong IT talent in large and medium-sized companies and important Tech start-ups. We bridge the gap between the academic world and professional life by creating the 'ideal incubator' for young IT professionals. Our unique START SMART programme provides a suitable and challenging project and supports them optimally with tailor-made training and coaching. A strong start and a steep learning curve guaranteed!

We are looking for driven, inquisitive and socially skilled young professionals with a passion for business analysis to reinforce the Exellys team in strategic projects with our clients in Antwerp, Mechelen, Leuven, Brussels and Ghent.

Job description

As an IT Business analyst you translate business requirements into a business and functional analysis that serves as a baseline to develop industry-specific software solutions. You are the link between business and IT and responsible for the smooth communication between both parties. You also prepare the test phase of the project and you report to the project manager.

Your profile

- You hold a Bachelor, Master or PhD degree in IT, ICT, Computer sciences, Management information systems and/or Information management.
- You have a broad basic knowledge of OO-programming and programming languages, software suites (SAP, AX,...), databases, SQL, UML, BPMN, etc.
- You already have some practical experience with collecting and analysing business requirements during school or other projects.
- You are passionate about bridging the gap between business and IT and continuous learning comes naturally to you.
- You like diversified work where you can use and develop your business acumen, technical expertise and analytical skills to their full potential.
- You have great communication, listening and writing skills and you can empathise with clients' needs.
- Your mother tongue is Dutch and/or French, you are fluent in English (also in writing) and in Dutch or French as second language.
- You work accurately, always deliver high quality work and you respect deadlines.
- You are a real team player but you can also work independently.
- You are flexible about your work location. Working on international projects is an option but never a must.

Our offer

As a junior consultant you start in our START SMART programme. A unique and intensive track for strong IT talent where your technical expertise and consulting skills will go through a steep learning curve. In our FUTURE LEADERS ACADEMY you are optimally supported with training and coaching to ensure an accelerated career start and to maximise your potential.

Exellys provides attractive wages and an extensive package of extra-legal benefits including the choice between a package with or without company car.
