

Growth Charts

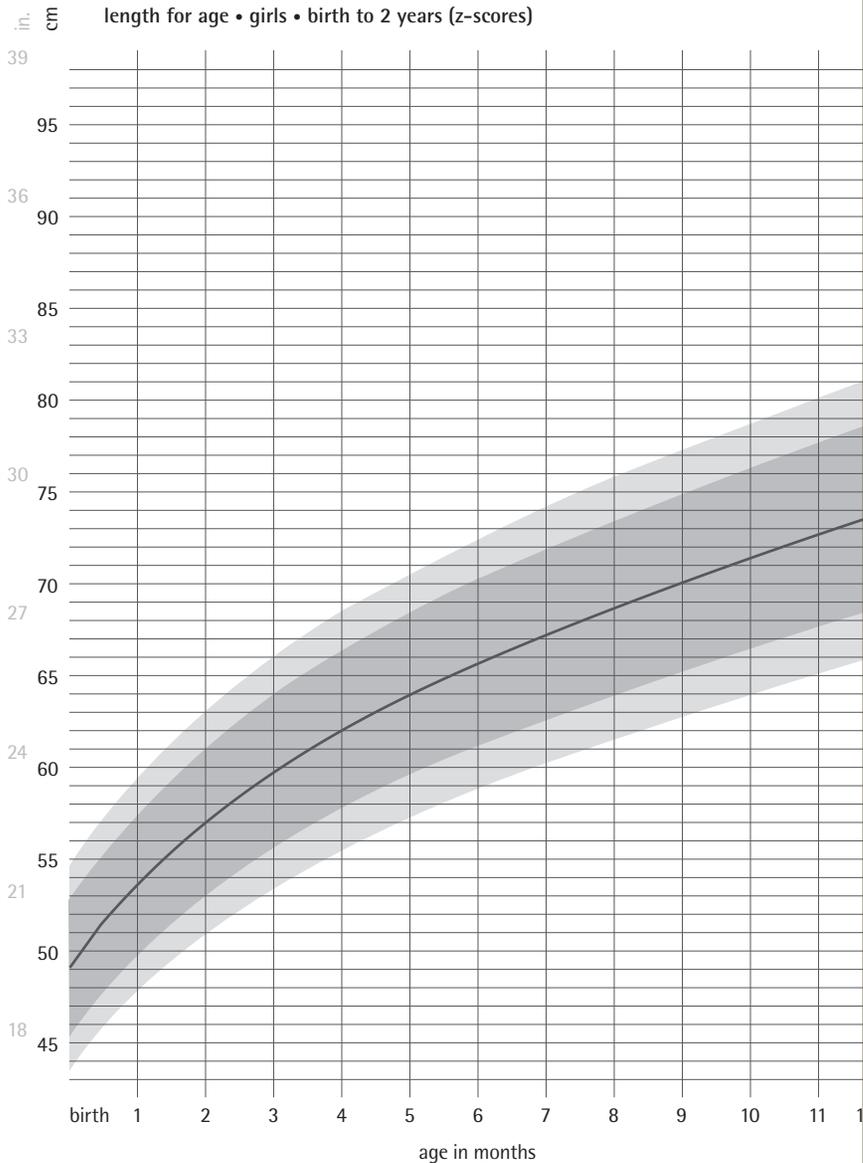

note: the reference lines on the growth charts (labelled 1, 2, 3, -1, -2, -3) are called z-score lines; they indicate how far points are above or below the median (z-score 0).

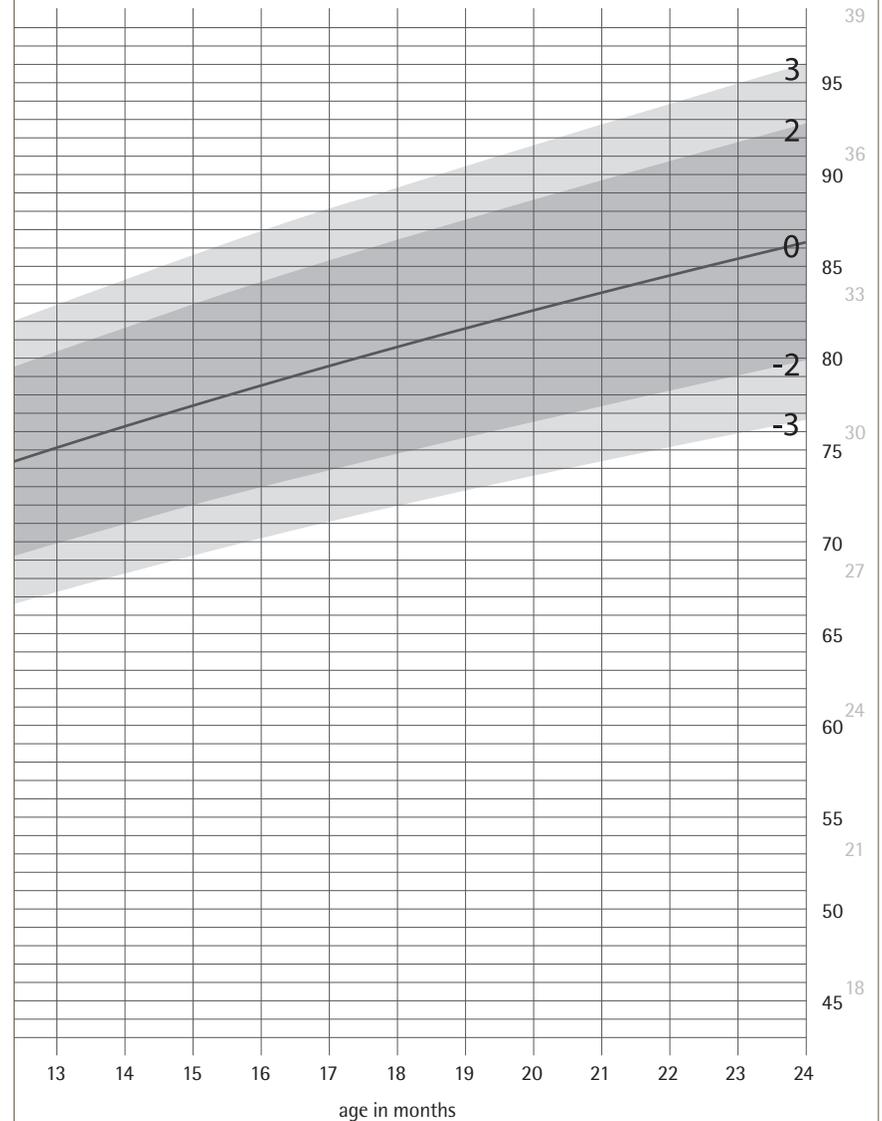

source: World Health Organization

BABY JOURNAL: Growth Charts

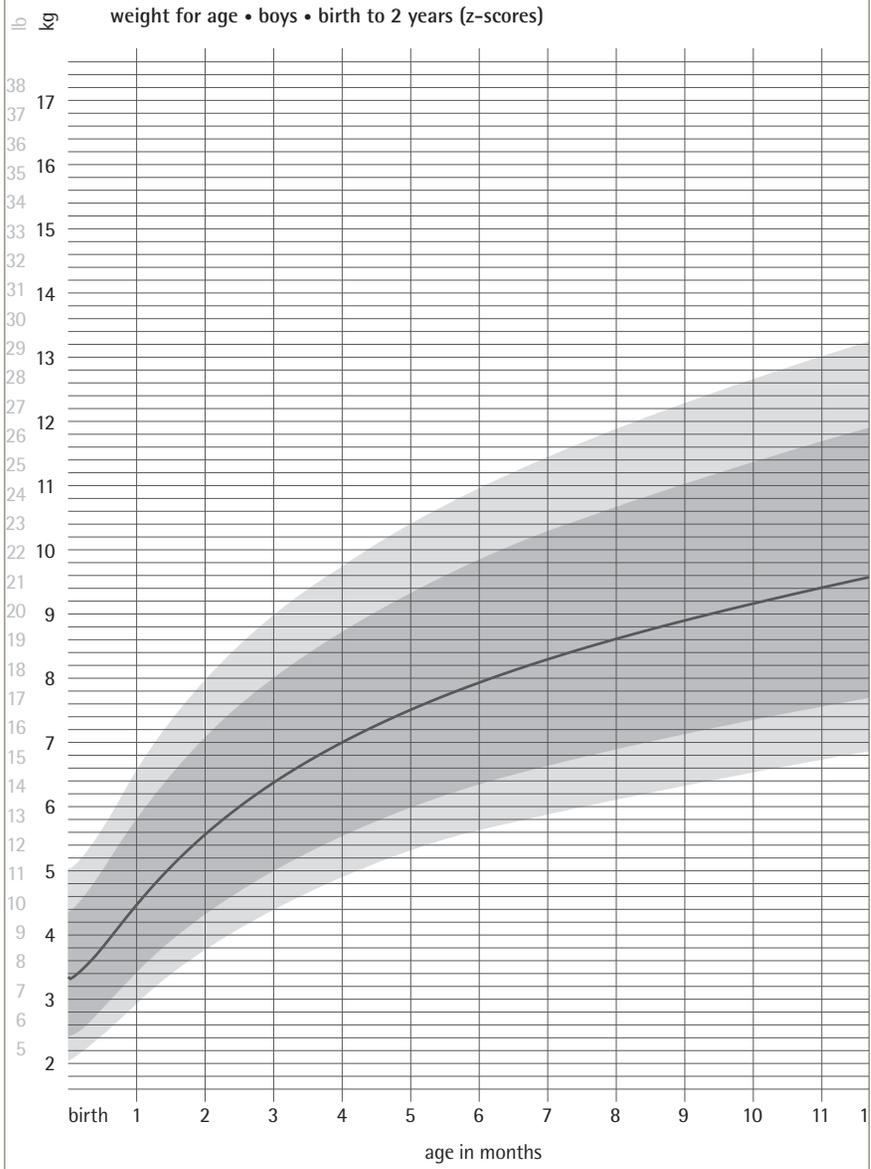

note: the reference lines on the growth charts (labelled 1, 2, 3, -1, -2, -3) are called z-score lines; they indicate how far points are above or below the median (z-score 0).

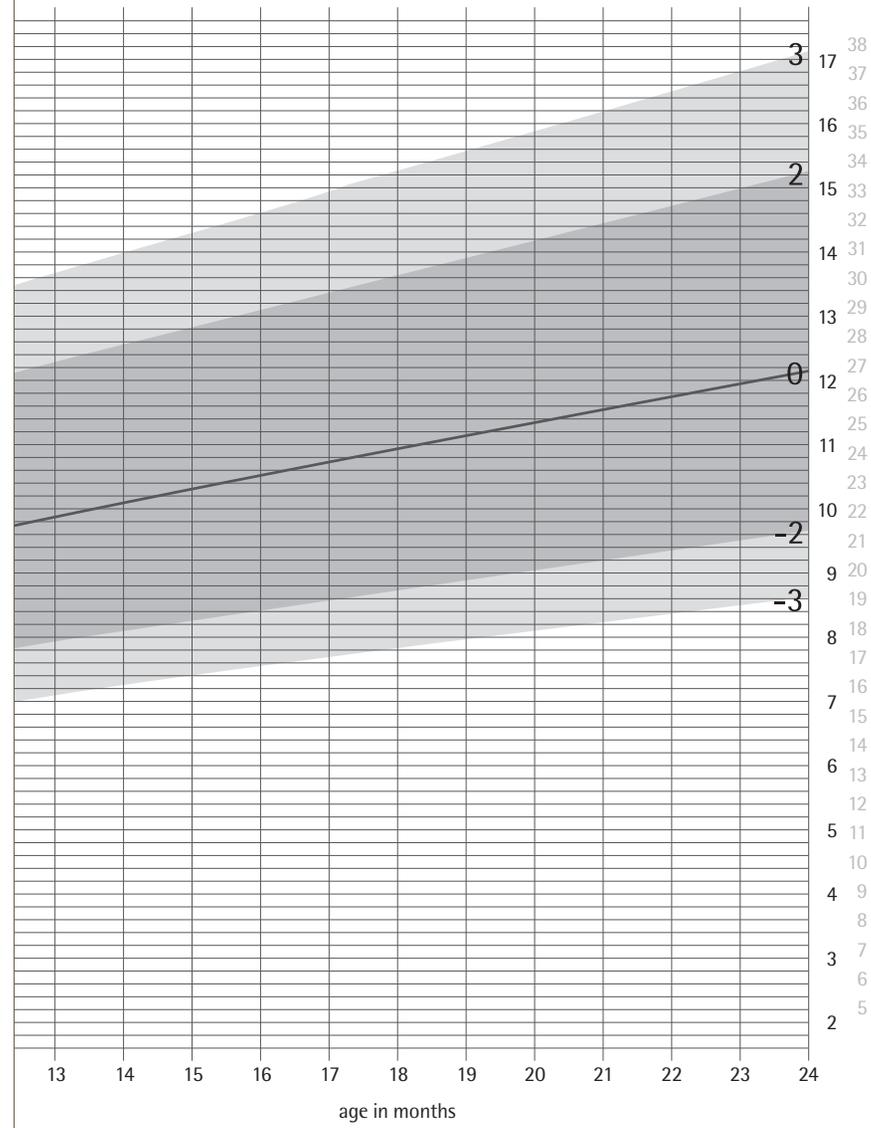

source: World Health Organization

BABY JOURNAL: Growth Charts

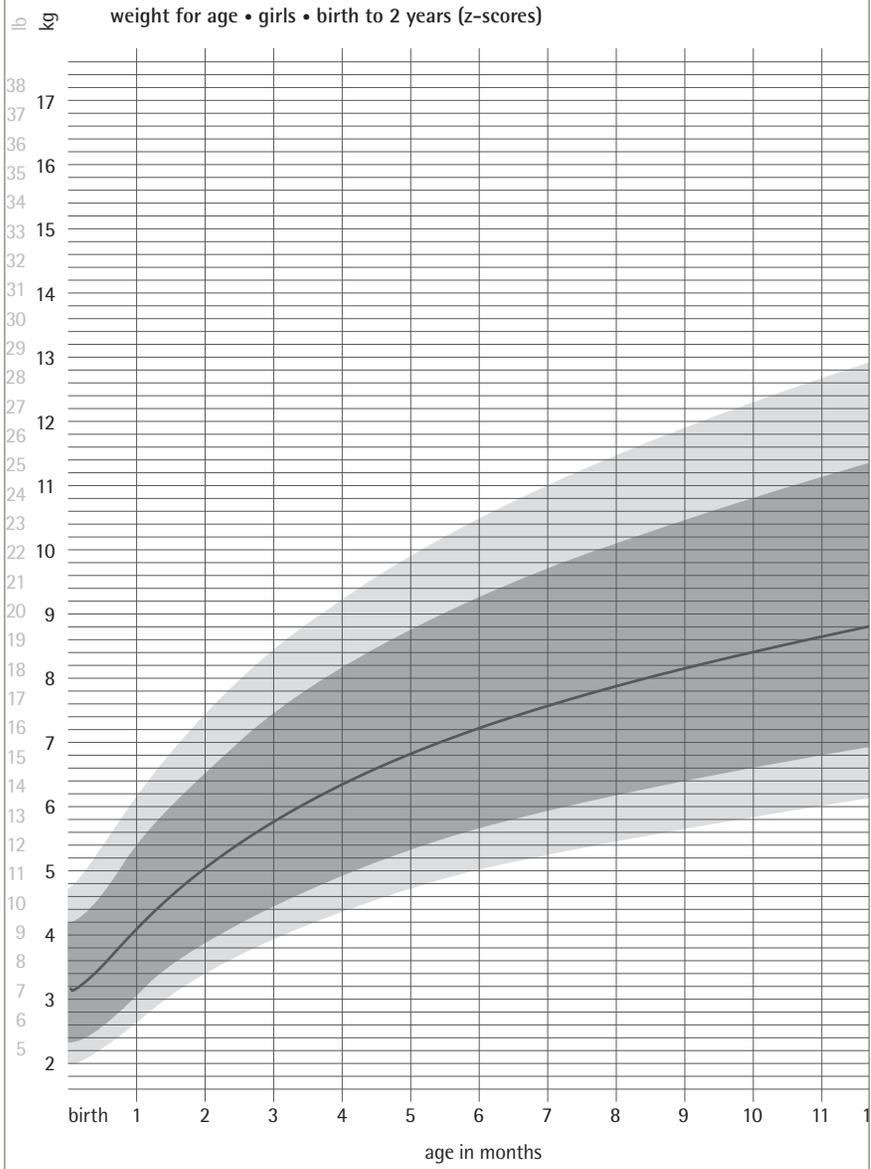

note: the reference lines on the growth charts (labelled 1, 2, 3, -1, -2, -3) are called z-score lines; they indicate how far points are above or below the median (z-score 0).

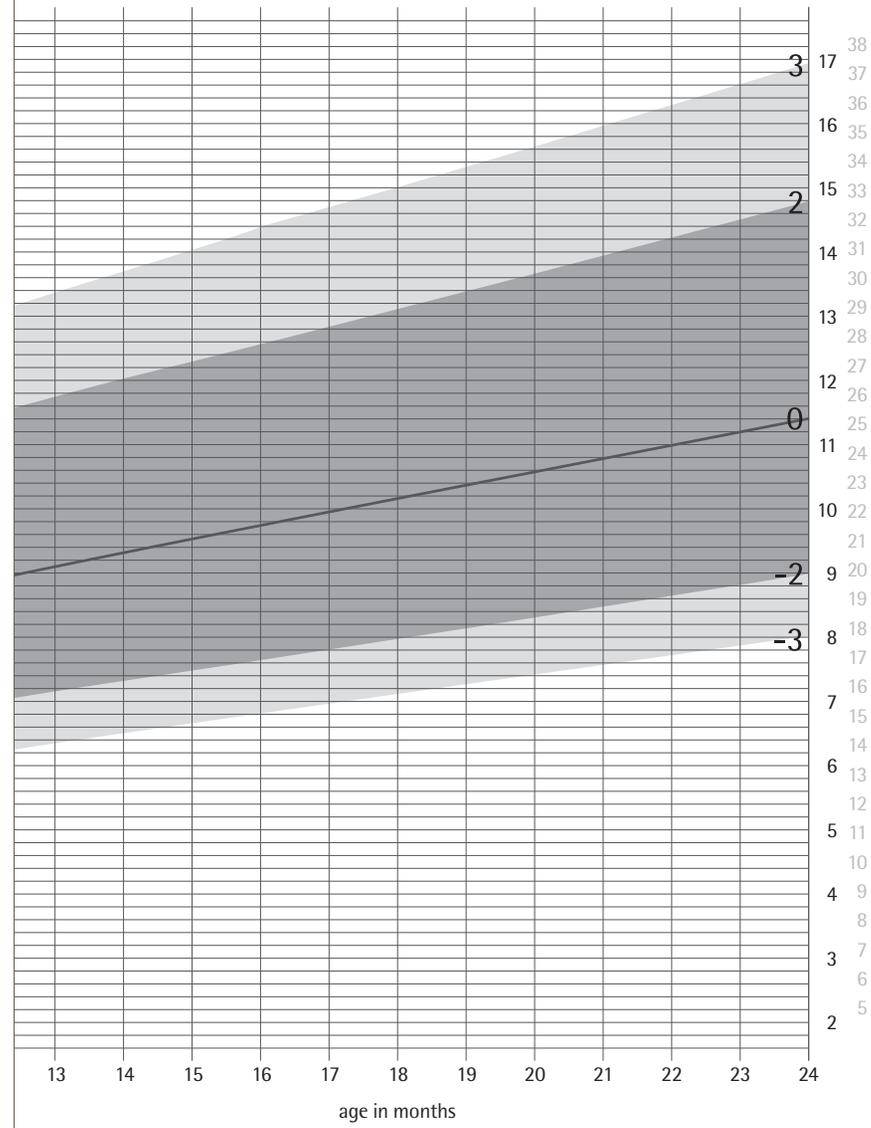

source: World Health Organization

BABY JOURNAL: Growth Charts

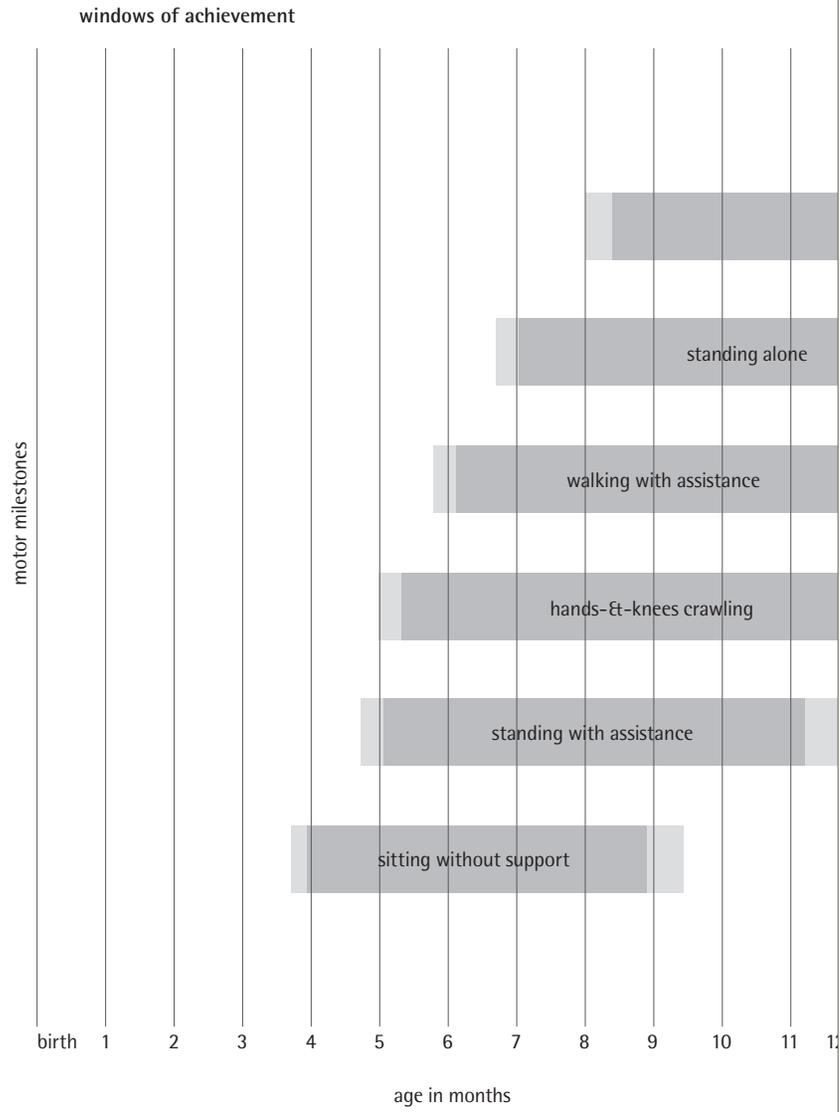

note: the reference lines on the growth charts (labelled 1, 2, 3, -1, -2, -3) are called z-score lines; they indicate how far points are above or below the median (z-score 0).

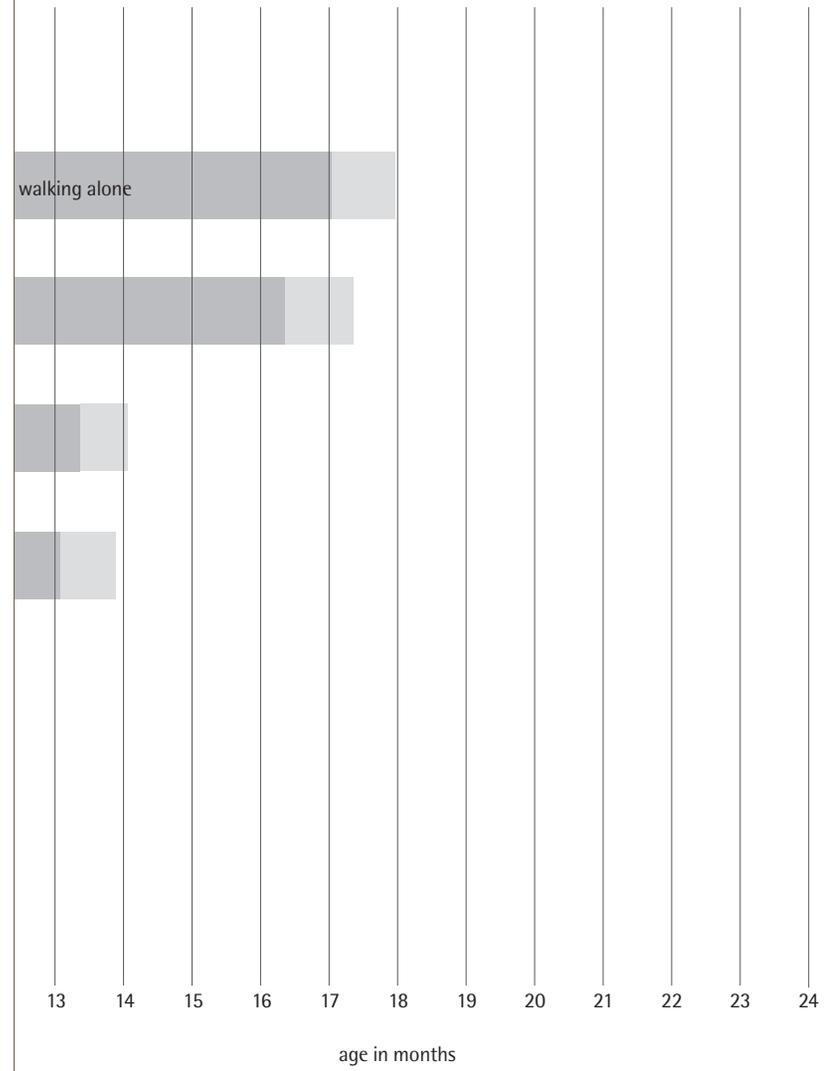

source: World Health Organization

BABY JOURNAL: Growth Charts

note: the chart shows six gross motor milestones that children are expected to achieve during specified age ranges between 4 and 18 months

source: World Health Organization