Everyone talks about social media's potential to democratize and empower
those less fortunate.
Mark actually makes
that happen.

M A R K H O R V A T H

In 2008, Mark Horvath set out to film the stories of America's homeless and share them with as many people as possible on InvisiblePeople.tv. Since then, he has become an internationally recognized activist and ambassador for the millions of individuals and families who reside in shelters, motels, tents along the streets and under highway bridges across the country.

Mark has been featured by the L.A. Times, CNN, CBS, MSNBC, MTV, Forbes, Chronicle of Philanthropy, NPR and more. He's spoken at a number of conferences and events, including keynoting the Geneva Forum on Social Change. In 2011 Mark was commissioned by Canadian Government to travel to 24 Canadian cities and help champion the Canadian Alliance to End Homelessness. He has also consulted for many government entities across the US. Mark is a regular presenter at UCLA, USC, NYU, and other educational institutions around the world.
