

Home Inventory Worksheet

Keeping track of the contents of your home is extremely important. After a loss on your homeowner's policy you are asked to provide a list of contents that received damage, or were destroyed, with an estimated value, and the date of purchase.

It is much easier to compose a list before a loss when all of the contents are around. Taking a few minutes now to compose a list of all your belongings makes the loss process much easier if a covered loss may occur.

Things to keep in mind:

- The more detailed, the better.
  - Giving a make, a model number, and a serial number, will help us replace any destroyed items to the way they were before.
- Take Pictures
  - Along with writing everything down, be sure to take some pictures! It can make it easier to go back and look at all of your belongings after a loss. Take a picture of an entire room, and if there are valuable items, take pictures of them separately so their value can be seen more easily.
- Log all of your items
  - Remember to write down all of your items, not just the ones you use all of the time.
- Be sure to update this worksheet annually.
  - You get new things all the time without realizing it. Take some time every year to go through and really make sure that you have added everything to your list. This way, nothing new will get forgotten.
- Even renter's should keep inventory
  - Homeowners aren't the only ones with total losses. Do not overlook the importance of keeping record of your belongings.

Where to keep your Home Inventory Worksheet:

- Send your agent a copy.
- Keep an electronic copy in your email.
- In a safe deposit box.
- Keep a copy in a fireproof container.
- Give a copy to a trusted family member that does not live with you.
