

Service Array Data Inventory Sample Worksheet

Introduction

This “Service Array Data Inventory Sample Worksheet” (Worksheet) is a companion tool to A Data-Driven Approach to Service Array Guide developed by the Capacity Building Center for States. To access this information, please visit: <https://capacity.childwelfare.gov/states/focus-areas/cwis/data-driven-service-array>

This Worksheet contains examples of basic questions to guide the service array assessment process. It contains sections specific to different service or program areas and can be modified to meet the needs of the jurisdiction.

The Worksheet offers one example of how a jurisdiction might organize this information. If the jurisdiction has an existing methodology to collect and organize this kind of information, the example questions in the tool can be integrated into the existing process and used to initiate conversation among service array assessment teams. The jurisdiction may choose to include these questions in a spreadsheet or another format that can be adapted and modified as the process continues.

Any findings related to data quality, recommendations for modifications to reports, or changes to the information system should be included in the jurisdiction’s existing process and documentation methodology for the Comprehensive Child Welfare Information System (CCWIS) or other case management system.

The jurisdiction may choose to assess service array agency-wide; at the regional, county, or local office level; or based on some other geographic or focus area. Ensure that the geographic area—as well as focus area and scope—are well-defined when formulating and addressing the key questions and next steps.

The “Service Types” page includes a non-exhaustive list of service types that could be included in a broad assessment of the service array. Alternatively, a jurisdiction could decide to focus on a particular type of service either from this list or one that it has otherwise identified.

The questions provided in the Worksheet are intended to be sample questions with which the jurisdiction should begin. The first column in each table provides examples of key questions that can be discussed, answered with data, and tracked. For the tool to be most effective, the questions and terminology used should be modified to be specific to the agency’s needs.

Service Types

The following service types are provided as examples of the core services the jurisdiction could include in a broad service array assessment, or it may choose to focus on specific service areas.

- ▶ Education services
- ▶ Employment and training services
- ▶ Health services
- ▶ Behavioral health services
