“I am a well trained and highly qualified sales manager with a comprehensive approach always paying attention to the persons I am responsible for. I am a leader with a focus on business development, results, and systematic processes. After closing a section of my professional life that was dedicated to IT industry my attention is turning to management consultancy, training and coaching. I am running a company of my own and also have the privilege partnering with the brightest management consultants and coaches in the city. I am seeking for the edge of technology, efficiency, humanity and arts. I am designing my training programs, my consultancy services and all the other activities I do, based on that principal. I am open for new ideas, startup projects and creative initiatives that might utilize my experiences or my market knowledge and could become a great challenge even around the globe.” – Aron Gyimesi at LinkedIn
