Nonprofit Data: Making the Connection Between Numbers and Narratives

To learn more about Nonprofit Network and Cooper Foundation, click here.

Join Cooper Foundation on Thursday, May 16th for Nonprofit Data: Making the Connection Between Numbers and Narratives presented by Dr. Kathy Krey, Director of the Texas Hunger Initiative (THI). Dr. Krey has a Ph.D. in sociology from Baylor University and prior to working at THI has experience as a university research analyst, adjunct faculty member, and a marketing communications professional for a management consulting firm.

In May's session, Dr. Krey will discuss how nonprofits can more effectively and accurately communicate data. We will look at examples of how data is best shared among a variety of audiences, whether they are funders, the community, or nonprofit boards.

Attendees will leave this session with a better understanding of how to utilize data in a way that connects an organization's numbers to its narrative.

Strategy & Sustainability Presented by Mission Capital

This interactive course is designed to help your organization create a strategy road map to respond to new opportunities and challenges.

About this Event

Are you looking for a flexible strategic plan to respond to our rapidly changing world? Is your team short on time, but in need of a clear strategy to get your organization ready for what's next? Would you welcome a clear picture of your true value, and how to leverage that for your nonprofit's sustainability? Do you need a new direction for where and how to obtain resources to address the needs of your clients and constituents?

The Strategy & Sustainability Intensive: Planning for What's Next is a one-day intensive designed to help your organization create a flexible strategy road map to respond to new opportunities and challenges. In today's volatile world, nonprofits must focus on strategy and sustainability to stay relevant. During the Strategy & Sustainability Intensive, nonprofit teams will receive in-depth training and coaching from Mission Capital experts on a holistic approach to planning for their nonprofit's unique needs and resources.
