Day One: Compare your current independent reading book with another book you have read in the past. How are the structures of the two texts alike?

Day Two: In the section of the text you read tonight, what are the differences between what the characters know and what you know, as a reader, based on the point of view the author uses?

Day Three: If the section of the text that you read tonight was made into a movie, what would the scene of this movie look like? If you are reading a text that has been made into a movie, how is this section of the text similar and/or different to the movie version?

Day Four: Synthesize information from your reading by revealing how you have changed and/or added to your background knowledge on a specific topic based on information from this text.

Day Five: Critique a decision that the author made about character development while writing this section of the book. (I like/dislike how the author _____ because _____.)
