

Why can't I write a Google review, you might ask? To create Google review account is unnecessary because even without a Gmail account, writing reviews on Google Maps and other platforms allowed by Google is certainly possible. With Google Reviews, clients can review about a business through anonymous reviews and other ways when you follow the tutorial below.

Step 1: Look for a Business or Subject You Want to Review

Whether you are logged in or out to your Google Mail account, you can simply look for the business or topic you want to leave a review at by searching the name on Google search. You can tell which examples let you create ratings with as seen on the right side of Google search results that has a button "Write a Review" on desktop or the "Reviews" tab via mobile.

Step 2: Opt to Review without a Gmail Account

When you click "Write a Review," a window would ask you to sign in. But since you don't want to use your Google account, select "Use another account" followed by "Create account." From there, you may choose whether to make one for yourself, a child, or a business. Tap "Use my current email address instead," and just follow the rest of the instructions inputted there such as writing your personal details and typing a verification code.

Note

Even though the top states "Create your Google Account," it doesn't actually have to let you create one.

Step 3: Leave a Rating

Rate and review

Share your experience to help others

You will automatically see five empty stars and that marks where you rate a business or subject from one star to five stars. Just select your preferred number of stars since each starred will be filled with color according to your rating.

Step 4: Expound Your Review
