

Table tents are often displayed on the tables of restaurants, shops, and other establishments. They're effective material for spreading information about a business, product, service, or event, which is why you can see many of them.

Table Tent Definition & Meaning

A table tent is a piece of stock-folded paper shaped to stand on its own on top of counters and table tops and is printed with information regarding certain products, services, and events.

It is a printed marketing or advertising tool meant for display on counters and tabletops in places with high visibility and foot traffic.

What Is a Table Tent?

A table tent is a rectangular (triangular on the sides) piece of stock-folded paper that businesses and vendors print to promote their products and services. Its layout typically has two pages separated on both sides filled with information and graphic design elements such as the company logo.

10 Types of Table Tent

Restaurant Table Tent

Restaurant table tents are the most common type of table tents. If you visit your nearest restaurant or cafe, chances are they have table tents displayed on their dining tables. They ostentatiously display the brand of a restaurant and often promote specialty menus and seasonal discounts. They're like miniature 20*30 ft. restaurant billboards or 6 ft. standees.

Menu Table Tent

As the name suggests, menu table tents are basically mini standee menus placed on top of dinner tables. Restaurants, catering services, and formal events with formal dinner setups use this type of table tent. Menu table tents often have elegant, classy designs befitting fine dining atmospheres.

Card Table Tent

Card table tents are typically shorter than other types of table tents. They contain minimal information, most likely just the name, logo, contact number, and mail address of a company or person such as a business consultant or a fitness trainer so they're easier to call. Like most other table tents, they also have eye-catching designs and are usually set on top of tables and counters.

Food Truck Table Tent

Food truck table tents are basically just restaurant table tents but for food truck businesses. Owners of food trucks display these on their counters and windows to inform customers of their future promos and specialties. Food truck table tents have fancy designs and have colors in line with the business brand that also look good digitally on computer and phone screens.

Wedding Table Tent

Wedding table tents are essentially menu table tents or menu folders made for weddings. Their designs are elegant and romantic and usually have a white or pinkish background. Also, their text uses fancy font styles, especially when it comes to the names of the bride and groom on the front page. If you're a wedding organizer, you should be knowledgeable about wedding table tent designs.

Wine Table Tent

Wine table tents can be found at wine party events and displayed on top of round cocktail tables. Their main purpose is to invite people to buy a bottle of wine or at least try one sip of the wine itself. The design of wine table tents usually has a dark, ambient feel like the darkish red color of wines.

Table Tent Uses, Purpose, Importance

For many years, companies across different industries have taken advantage of the benefits offered by table tents. If you're strongly considering adopting the use of such material, it's essential to know their importance. So, let's discuss the uses, purpose, and importance of table tents.

Promote New Products and Services

Many printed marketing tools promote new products and services, such as flyers, posters, and brochures. They are the primary choice of most business owners for advertisements but note that table tents are just as good as them. And since table tents are displayed in a high-visibility area, more people can discover your new product or service when you use them.

Keep Regular Customers

Customers who regularly visit your store are likely looking for something new in your business. So with table tents on your counters showing your latest offers, you're sure to grab their interest, and in return, you get to keep them in your customer base. The possibility of repeat business is among the benefits of using table tents.

Boost Upsells

Upsells can help grow your revenue exponentially. Table tents are great tools to boost upsells by using them to advertise your product/service add-ons and other premium offers. With captivating and inviting table tent designs, you'll be able to encourage customers to make more purchases.

What's In a Table Tent? Parts?

Company Name and Logo

Your company name and logo must be present in your table tents. Without them, it won't be clear to the audience who to contact or to inquire about your product, service, or event. Note that your company name and logo are typically found at the heading of the table tent.

Product/Service Information

Info about your product or service is the most important part of a table tent because that's what it's promoting. Details about its pricing, features, and other inclusions must be present in the table tent.

Images

Though not all table tents have images, they add depth to a table tent which is why we recommend that you merge them with your own table tents. Your photos should pop and showcase your product's appearance or a preview of your services in action since they make table tents more compelling and eye-catching.

Background

The background design makes a table tent look livelier and more catchy. Both light and dark background colors work fine as long as they glorify the other contents of the table tent.
