From music videos, and TV news videos, to training video presentations, you can see eclectic types of videos in different events, as well as in analog and digital platforms. Below is a list of the common uses, purposes, and importance of Videos.

Better Audience Engagement

Producing a compelling and well-thought-out video is fundamental for better audience engagement, especially for entertainment purposes. Research studies have shown that most people feel better when they watch videos than reading web articles and other publications.

Enhanced Information Retention

Including audio and visuals in classes, and training sessions is an effective way to help students, professionals, and other individuals remember what they learn. Videos are useful to help many people in keeping what they have learned so that they are able to use it now and later.

Marketing and Promotional Tool

Many companies, organizations, and content marketing specialists use attention-grabbing videos to reach as many potential customers as possible. Videos can be used by many people anytime everywhere and they are accessible and easy to distribute and share with others, allowing immense marketing and promotional opportunities for many businesses to build their brands and inform the public about their products, and services.

Clarity and Emphasis

Videos are typically used to clarify and emphasize a specific matter in order to help the viewers clearly understand and grasp the meaning of a particular subject or topic. This is very important for job training, development sessions, school activities, and other educational programs.

Long-Lasting Memories

Recording and editing videos are beneficial for making long-lasting memories with your loved ones. Whether you are making a video for a birthday party, graduation, anniversary, wedding, or memorial event, a video beautifully captures the wonderful moments we share with one another and helps us to reminisce those circumstances anytime in our lives.

What's in a Video? Parts?

Title and Subtitle

Write the title and subtitle of your video. Use clear and simple language when writing your video title and subtitle.

Cinematography

This is an integral element of film and video making as it shows how the video was framed, toned, and colored in its own way of photography. Include some motion pictures or live-action clips for your video.

Graphics or Illustrations

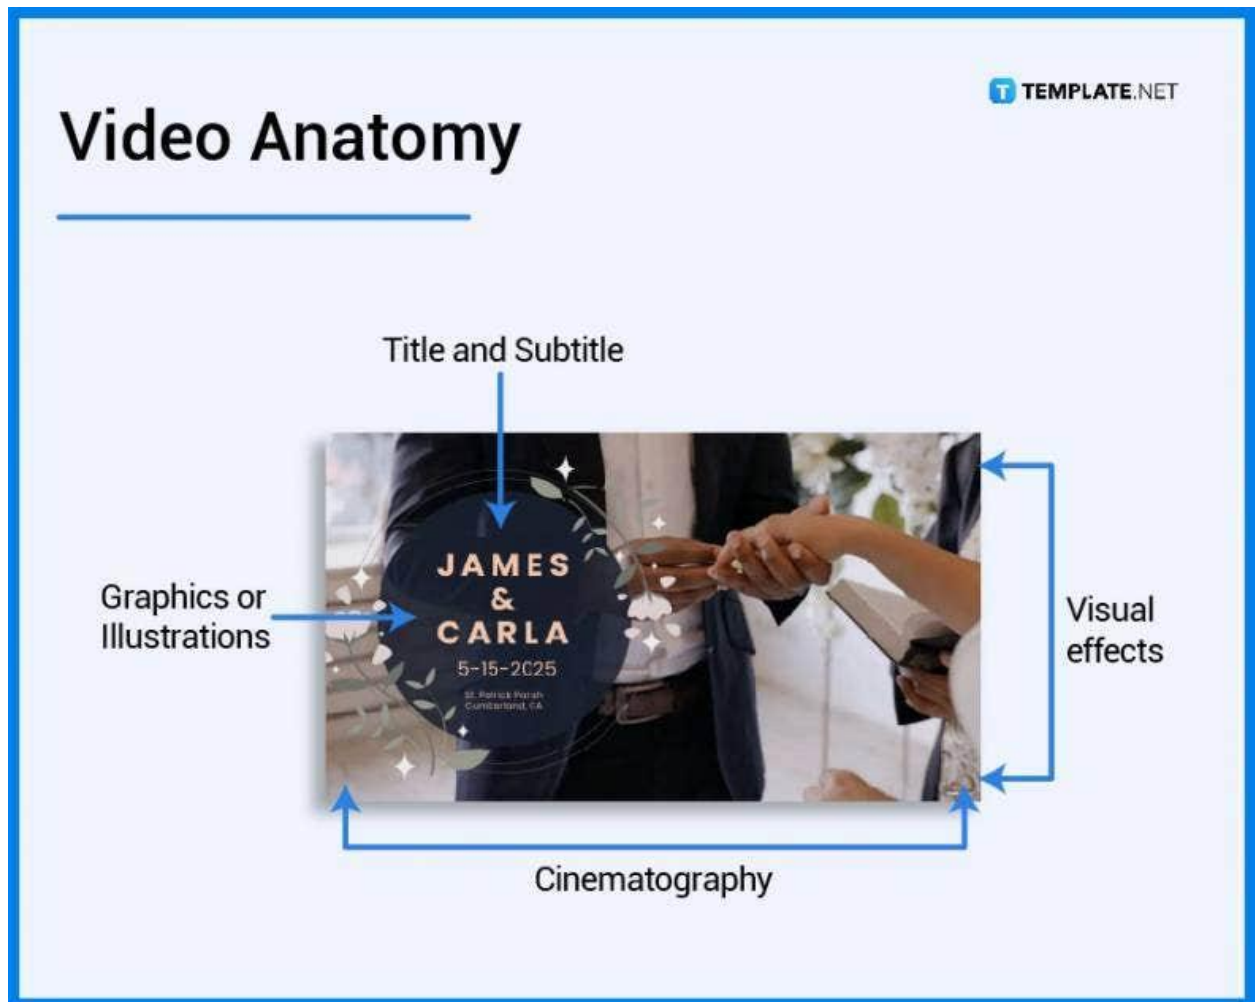

Adding several eye-catching graphics, or illustrations is a great way to create an enticing video. Colorful graphics and illustrations can make the atmosphere in the video more fun and lively, so incorporating specifically-themed visual graphics and illustrations depends on the emotions you want to be portrayed in the video.

Visual effects

You may include some visual effects in your video to make it more powerful to your viewers. Well-designed visual effects can help you in setting a solid brand reputation and elevate the quality of your content.

Music

Choosing the right background music or theme song for your video is important so that you are able to craft wide-ranging emotions from your viewers, set rhythm for scenes, and highlight the gist of your story in your video.
